Biodegradable copolymer (poly(DL-lactide) -co-glycolide) (PLGA) microspheres bearing 20 kDa PEG-modified carboxymethyl cellulose (CMC-PEG) were prepared by an emulsion solvent evaporation technique for the sustained delivery of cytochrome c (cyt c). PLGA microspheres loaded with cyt c and PLGA microspheres bearing 20 kDa PEG and without cyt c were compared in terms of (i) cytotoxicity in cell culture (COS-7 cells) and (ii) protein release profile in vitro. The evaluation in vivo was also conducted on tumors of C57BL/6 mice. The cytotoxicity of the PLGA microspheres was compared with that of the corresponding polymers without CMC-PEG by measuring the in vitro cytotoxicity of polymer- or cyt c-encapsulated PLA microspheres on COS-7 cells. The release profile of cyt c from PLGA microspheres in vitro was measured by monitoring the absorbance of the cytochrome c at 550 nm. The cytotoxicity of the PLGA microspheres f678ea9f9e
